

M.Sc. Bioethics at the University of Ibadan

Call for applications for M.Sc. Bioethics program at the University of Ibadan

The West African Bioethics training Program hereby announces the commencement of application for admission into M.Sc. Bioethics program for 2010/2011 session at the Department of Surgery, University of Ibadan.

The objective of the modular program is to build the capacity of researchers, ethics committee members, administrators of research ethics committee and community members who serve on ethics committees and community advisory boards.

The program is a 3 semester program in which the first two semesters are for course work. The last semester is for project during which students will be embedded in any of a wide range of ongoing research projects in Nigeria based on their research interest. Kindly see <http://westafricanbioethics.net/postgraduate/> for details about this program.

Applicants who qualify for admission into this program and for support will enjoy free tuition, accommodation, books and stipend from the West African Bioethics training program. Application process has begun at the University of Ibadan for 2010/2011 academic session. Kindly see <http://www.ui-pgschool.com/admission-application.php> for the online application.