

Ann Dellinger, PhD, MPH
Motor Vehicle Injury Prevention Team Lead
Division of Unintentional Injury Prevention
National Center for Injury Prevention and Control, CDC

Ann Dellinger is an epidemiologist and the team leader for the Motor Vehicle Injury Prevention Team at CDC's National Center for Injury Prevention and Control (NCIPC) where she oversees the road safety work of the Center. She consults with domestic and international organizations including the U.S. Transportation Research Board, the World Health Organization (WHO) and the Pan American Health Organization (PAHO). Dr. Dellinger has served as an epidemiologist on CDC's Motor Vehicle Injury Prevention Team since 1993. She began her career at CDC in the Epidemic Intelligence Service (EIS). Among other EIS assignments, she served as a consultant to the state of Maine Bureau of Motor Vehicles for the study of the risk of traffic crashes due to medical conditions. Dr. Dellinger has authored and coauthored more than 50 publications. Among the several awards that she has won are three NCIPC Director's Awards as well as Certificates of Commendation from Federal Executive Board for Outstanding Scientist, and Outstanding Team.